Television (T)
Movie for Television (MT)

Genre:
Drama (D)
Comedy (C)
Science Fiction/Horror (SF)
Satire/Parody (P)
True Stories/Biography (TS)

Gender:
Male (M)
Female (F)
Group (G): When journalists are seen in groups – pack journalism, news conferences, miscellaneous groupings – it is difficult if not impossible to get an accurate count of males and females. In the 1930s and 1940s, however, the group is predominantly if not totally male. Groups are counted as one group no matter how many journalists may be seen on the screen.

Ethnicity:
Caucasian (C)
African-American (AA)
Latino (L): Includes Hispanic, Chicano and other Spanish cultures.
Unspecified (U): Mostly groups of journalists who are not easily identified by ethnicity. who do not fit into ethnic categories, or who were not identified as major or minor characters such as Asians, Native Americans, and Indian people.

Media Category:
Newspaper (N)
Magazine (M)
Radio (R)
Television (T)
Internet (I)
Undefined (U): Includes many different job categories that are undefined in the film or TV program. Many of these journalists are in large settings such as press conferences, newsrooms, or editorial and technical staff in the field.
Job Title:
Reporter-Correspondent (R): A person who reports news or conducts interviews for newspapers, magazines, television, radio, Internet or any other organization that disseminates news. Referred to as a journalist, a newspaperman or woman, newsmen or woman. A correspondent is a person who contributes reports to a variety of news media from a distant, often remote, location.

Columnist/Blogger (C): A person who writes a regular column for a newspaper, magazine, Internet site or any other medium.

Editor/Producer (E): A person who assigns stories and edits copy for a newspaper, magazine, Internet or other medium. Usually referred to as a city editor, managing editor or editor-in-chief. This category also includes producer – a person who controls various aspects of a news program for television, radio, the Internet and other media. He or she takes all the elements of a newscast (video, graphics, audio) and integrates them into a cohesive show. Title includes the producer of a specific news program, a field producer who is in charge of field production of individual news stories, an executive producer in charge of news programs.

Photojournalist (PH): A person who creates still or moving images in order to tell a news story. Titles include photographer, cameraman, shooter, stringer, paparazzi and anyone else using a photographic device to make a photographic record of an event.

Anchor/Commentator (A): A person who presents news on television, radio, the Internet or other media; a news presenter also known as newsreader, newscaster, anchorman or anchorwoman, news anchor or simply anchor. This category also includes commentator – a person who adds analysis and occasionally opinion to his or her news reports for any media, usually radio or television. Also can be a radio announcer.

News Executive (NE): A person at a broadcast station or network or other media who is in charge of the news department. Executive in charge of news. A management position.

Publisher/Media Tycoon (P): A person who is a successful entrepreneur or businessperson who controls, through personal ownership or a dominant position, a mass media related company or enterprise. Referred to as a media proprietor, media mogul, media baron. A publisher usually specifically refers to someone who owns a newspaper or a collection of newspapers.

Press Conference Journalists (PC): A person who attends a news conference or press conference in which newsmakers invite journalists to hear them speak and, most often, ask questions. Washington journalists generally attend presidential news conferences or news conferences held by members of Congress.

Pack Journalists (PJ): A person who joins other reporters chasing after stories. They often travel in packs, usually armed with television cameras and microphones. They cover fast-breaking news by crowding, yelling, shouting, bullying and forcing their way into breaking news events. They often show up with their lights, cameras, microphones and digital recorders as they shout out questions to the usually reluctant newsmaker in question. Pack journalism is also defined as journalism practiced by reporters in a group usually marked by uniformity of news coverage and lack of original thought or initiative.
Appendix: The Image of the Washington Journalist in Movies and Television

Miscellaneous (M): Individual journalists unidentified in the film or TV program as to job description. Usually in the background functioning as editorial and technical staff.

Description:

Very Positive (VP): This is the Washington journalist as an heroic character. This is the journalist who does the right thing, who fights everyone and anything to get the facts out to the public. He or she often exposes corruption, solves a murder, catches a thief or saves an innocent. Everything done is in the public interest. This kind of image makes the public believe that journalists are invaluable to any democracy.

Positive (P): These Washington journalists will do anything to get a story that they believe is vital to the public interest, to the public welfare. They try to do their job without hurting anyone, and are basically individuals trying to do the right thing, but often are frustrated by the system. They may be flawed, they may make mistakes, they may drink too much or quit their jobs in disgust, but they always seem to end up by doing the right thing by the end of the story. The reporter or editor could get away with anything as long as the end result is in the public interest. The journalist could lie, cheat, distort, bribe, betray, or violate any ethical code as long as the journalist exposed corruption, solved a murder, caught a thief, or saved an innocent.

Negative (N): These Washington journalists are villains because they use the precious commodity of public confidence in the press for their own selfish ends. They use the power of the media for their own personal, political, or financial gain. They care less about the public interest than their own interests. They are interested in making more money, gaining power, doing anything to get what they want.

Very Negative (VN): These Washington journalists often engage in unethical and often unlawful activities to get what they want at all costs, even committing murder or serious crimes. They are manipulative and cynical. Often they are publishers who use their power to corrupt government or business, to take advantage of the public. They are cheaters who are only interested in what is good for them, no one else. They usually are involved with the tabloid or sensationalistic press and often make up the anonymous news media chasing after individuals without regard to their privacy or safety. These anonymous journalists travel in packs, usually armed with television cameras and microphones.

Neutral: These Washington journalists usually make up the anonymous members of the Washington Press Corps and usually can be seen at presidential press conferences taking notes or reacting to what the president is saying. They are usually nondescript characters who are simply there as journalists doing their job without offending anyone. They are often in the background and figure slightly in the plot or action of the film or television program.

Major Character (Major): A major character influences in the outcome of the story or event. He or she is usually a leading character played by a major actor of the time.

Minor Character (Minor): A minor character does not play a significant role in the development of the film or TV program. He or she is usually a part of a larger group – i.e., journalists in a news conference, the Washington Press Corps, or a part of the editorial or technical staff.

House of Cards (2013)
Reporter Zoe Barnes (Kate Mara) of the Washington Herald is a barely tested young journalist who is burning to gather scoops and launch a blog on her newspaper’s website that will vault her into immediate stardom and journalism celebrity. Desperate for a break, she makes a deal with House Majority Whip Frank Underwood for information about the legislature and executive branch. Barnes offers to be his media leak in return for exclusive information. She also wears push-up bras and offers herself up as a sexual object to clinch her deals. She ends up sleeping with her source. Washington Herald Editor Lucas Goodwin (Sebastian Arcelus). Editor-in-Chief Tom Hammerschmidt (Boris McGiver). Correspondent Janine Skonsky (Constance Zimmer). Real-Life Anchors and Commentators: Donna Brazile, Candy Crowley, John King, Soledad O’Brien, Bill Maher, George Stephanopoulos, Dennis Miller. Anonymous reporters.
